Overview

Colleen is a trial lawyer with 30 years of experience representing clients in high stakes complex products liability, pharmaceutical and medical device and health care litigation. She has served as trial counsel, national counsel and science counsel in coordinated state court proceedings and multi-district litigation in state and federal courts nationally. Colleen also advises and represents corporate and individual clients involving professional liability and healthcare matters.

A dedicated and respected litigator, Colleen has a reputation for mastering complex scientific issues and presenting those issues in the most effective way in motion practice, evidentiary hearings and at trial. Colleen works with each of her clients to develop a strategy that supports the client's objectives. Clients appreciate her thorough and thoughtful approach to the issues they face, as well as her ability to efficiently analyze complex issues and work collaboratively with client representatives to achieve desired outcomes.
